We collect biometrics for most applications. Find out what happens from when you submit your application to when you get to Canada and where biometrics fits in the process. 1. Apply for permanent residence If you want to apply for permanent residence in Canada, make sure you're eligible to apply. Use our application guides to help fill out your application properly, then submit your application. Avoid processing delays by sending us a complete application. 2. Get your fingerprints and photo taken If you're between 14 and 79 years old, you need to give your fingerprints and photo (biometrics) for every application for permanent residence you submit. Even if you gave your biometrics in the past and they're still valid. You must pay the biometrics fee when you submit your application. Otherwise you may experience delays. Get this done as soon as you get the letter from us that tells you to give biometrics. You have 30 days to do this from the date on the letter. Find out who needs to give, how to give, and where to give your biometrics. 3. We process your application After we get your biometrics, we start processing your application. See how long it takes to process your application. If we need more information from you, we'll contact you. 4. We make a decision on your application When we finish reviewing your application, we let you know if you're approved to come to Canada. If you are, we issue your documents. If your application is refused, we send you a letter that tells you why. 5. You travel to Canada (if you're approved) Make sure you travel with the documents we gave you. This includes documents like your Confirmation of Permanent Residence (COPR), permanent resident visa (if you're from a country that needs a visa), or eTA (electronically linked to your passport) if you're from a visa-exempt country or your single entry journey document if you don't have a travel document. Airline staff and border service officers at ports of entry will ask to see your travel documents. If you don't have them, you may not be able to board your flight to Canada. Make sure children under 18 travel with the right documents. 6. We check your identity when you arrive in Canada When you arrive, we check your identity to make sure that you are the same person who was approved to travel to Canada. We may use your biometrics to do this. If we can't verify your identity, you may be detained by a border services officer. These officers help protect the health and safety of Canadians. If the officer determines that you're not admissible to Canada, you won't be allowed to enter Canada. If you came by air, you'll have to take a return flight to where you came from. 7. You're allowed to enter Canada If you pass the identity check and meet the entry requirements, the border services officer stamps your passport and lets you know how long you can stay in Canada. You're normally allowed to stay in Canada for up to six months. Children under 18 must meet the same entry requirements as adults. The border services officer may ask minor children to show other documents depending on whether the child is travelling alone or with someone. Home/Canada Visa Application Forms CIC News > Latest News > Family > Canada launches new immigration application tracker for spousal and child sponsorship Immigration applicants for spousal, common-law, and dependent child sponsorship can now view their application status online. Canada has launched an online portal where spousal and child sponsorship applicants can track their immigration application online. The tracker can be found on the government website. It is currently only for people who are applying for spousal, common-law, and dependent child sponsorship. It is available to applicants as well as representatives. Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) notes on the online form that the tracker's information is subject to change at any time before IRCC officers make any final decisions. It also says there may be some delays or differences between the actual progress of sponsorship applications and the information shown in the tracker. Sponsor your family for Canadian immigration The tracker was announced earlier this week by Immigration Minister Sean Fraser as part of an effort to modernize the Canadian immigration system. "We understand that clients want easier access to status updates on their case files," a government media release said. "That is why we will also introduce a new Permanent Residence Application Tracker in February 2022 for spouses and dependents, to allow clients to easily access their application information and status online." The government also wants to expand online applications to more future immigrants in the summer of 2022. The transition to more online application processes is intended to minimize processing delays associated with paper applications and the pandemic. In the release, the government wrote that its efforts to date have allowed average processing times for new spousal sponsorship applicants to return to the service standard of 12 months. Canada has been experiencing a backlog in immigration applications across all lines of business. As of December 2021, there were 54,683 spousal sponsorship applicants and 8,848 children and other family class applicants waiting for a decision. Hi, Towards the front of your Immigration Form there is a check list. This check list explains the documents you will need to include with your form (i.e. passport documents, proof of funds, medical information etc). With any visa application it's important to ensure that you attach all the required information or your application may be returned to you. The forms themselves will guide you through the process, but you must ensure you have the correct form for the visa you want to apply for. Given that some visa applications can carry hefty fees it may also be wise to check with an Immigration Adviser or Lawyer as to whether you qualify for that particular visa.The form itself will explain which parts you need to fill out and which parts you don't. If you don't understand the form you may wish to get a friend or a family member to explain it to you. There is a part at the back of the form to complete saying that they have assisted you in the completion of it. If all else fails you may need to seek advice from an Immigration Adviser or Lawyer. However, I always suggest calling around so you can ensure you get the best deal. You can get documents for every purpose in the signNow forms library.
