Joyous celebration 19 music

Music is Good Medicine: On behalf of the African Descendants MERG in MN and the Lavins Center for Humanities in Medicine, please enjoy this performance by Ericka Wheeler, Mayo Clinic Alix School of Medicine student and artist as we celebrate Black History Month, 2021. If you're dating a musical artist, it's only natural for them to cozy up to a partner or two in their music videos. Some celebrities have decided to combine work and pleasure by having their significant others join them as their co-stars in their own music videos. While some of these couples are still making beautiful music together (at least, metaphorically speaking) other celebrity music video co-stars didn't survive. Luckily for us, the celebrities who parted ways will always be a couple in their 3-minute long music videos. Check out the 17 couples who shared the screen in a music video.All Images: Vevo On Sunday, Sept. 29 "Bad At Love" singer Halsey released a new music video for "Clementine" on her 25th birthday, and the premiere is a present to her fans. The singer and her brother Sevian dance in front of an aquarium exhibit in the music video, both wearing matching white jumpsuits printed with a clementine logo and Converse sneakers. Both siblings also have orange glitter makeup on for the routine. On Twitter, Halsey announced the music video premiere, revealing that the project was debuting on her birthday. She wrote: "Exactly 25 years ago to this moment I was born. I wanted to celebrate today by sharing a new song called "clementine" and a cute lil video for it that i made with my brother Sevian. Enjoy." On Saturday, Halsey teased the music video on Instagram, sharing a dramatic moment from the video in which Sevian lifted her into the air. She captioned the picture, "clementine." The music video was choreographed by Dani Vitale, who also co-directed the project with Anton Tammi. "Clementine" is the latest single off of Halsey's upcoming album Manic, which is set to release on January 17, 2020. "Clementine" and the music video are just the singer's latest project in a month full of major announcements. On Sept. 13, Halsey announced her third studio album would be out via Capitol Records in January, and she released the first single, titled "Graveyard", according to Pitchfork. The album is a followup to 2017's hopeless fountain kingdom, which included her chart-topping single "Bad at Love." In lieu of a formal music video, "Graveyard" was released with a time lapse of the star painting the Manic album cover on a large canvas. In September, Halsey also posted the album announcement on Instagram, writing, "GRAVEYARD is out now.my 3rd album "Manic" is available for pre-order now. it's nice to meet you." Last week, the singer announced the Manic world tour on Instagram as well, which will kick off in February with dates in Europe. She wrote, "Manic World Tour(First Installment) Tickets on sale Friday." Back in June, Halsey discussed the album-writing process for Manic in an interview with Rolling Stone. She's been open about having having bipolar disorder in the past, and described the album as being, "the first I've ever written manic." The Without Me singer also said that the album would combine many genres as a result. She said: "Hip-hop, rock, country, f*cking everything — because it's so manic. It's soooooo manic.It's literally just, like, whatever the f*ck I felt like making; there was no reason I couldn't make it." The album release will top off a busy couple of years for the star. In addition to working on her own new music, Halsey was featured on BTS' "Boy With Luv" from the album MAP OF THE SOUL: PERSONA. In May, Halsey and BTS performed "Boy With Luv" at the 2019 Billboard Music Awards. In February, the pop star also hosted and performed on SNL. Halsey's career has taken off as of late, and the next year of her life seems likely to be just as eventful. Amid the career chaos, her latest single "Clementine" is the perfect way for her to celebrate turning 25 with her fans. List of Partners (vendors) Nashville celebrates music all year long, but the city goes especially wild in the month of June, when music is king and festivals flourish. Nashville is also affordable year-round, and June is no exception. Visitors can find discounted prices by researching package deals and budget accommodations, and although some music events might seem pricey, most are actually quite reasonable considering the amount of artists performing and the duration of the event. June brings ideal weather conditions, with temperatures averaging 85 degrees. With so many events and warm weather, Nashville is our pick as the destination to visit this June. Why Nashville in June? Heralded as the Country Music Capital of the World, the city celebrates its title with the CMA Country Music Festival June 8 through 11. More than 400 country singers and stars will peform, among them Martina McBride, Carrie Underwood, Trace Adkins, and Leann Rimes. Tickets can be purchased online at Ticketmaster or by calling the festival box office at 1-800-CMA-FEST (262-3378), and cost $125 to $260 for a four-day pass that includes all-day admission and evening activities and shows. Single-night tickets are also available for $30 per night, but do not include any of the daily activities. For visitors wanting music that's a little rougher around the edges, the Vans Warped Tour brings dozens of punk and pop-punk bands together to play multiple outdoor stages at the Starwood Amphitheatre on June 21 . Tickets are $23.75 for general admission through Ticketmaster. Beginning June 16, visitors can spend three days camping and listening to a variety of music styles, including grassroots, rock, hip hop, electronica, and alternative, performed on multiple stages at the Bonnaroo Festival. Located in Manchester, about 60 miles outside of Nashville, the festival will feature more than 80 artists, including Radiohead, Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers, Death Cab for Cutie, and Bonnie Raitt. General admission tickets for the three-day weekend can be purchased online for $185, including camping and parking. On June 3 and 4, the city will jump into action as the original cast members of the "Dukes of Hazzard" television show make their first appearance together for CMT Dukesfest 2006. During the two-day festival, fans will have an opportunity to meet the actors; see a parade of replicas of the Duke's car, the General Lee; hear live music; and experience Hazzard County. Advance tickets cost $20 for one day and $30 for both days. Same-day tickets cost an extra $5. Hotel packages are also available, starting at $213 depending on hotel location, and include tickets for both days and a two-night stay at select properties. During the same weekend, visitors will have the opportunity to meet the stars of various reality television shows at the world's first-ever Reality TV Convention, at the Nashville Airport Marriott. More than 100 reality stars will make an appearance to sign autographs and share their TV experiences. Tickets cost $25 for both days, while single passes are $15 per day. Three American Idol finalists will also perform on June 3 for $22. Tickets are available online. On June 23, Nashville offers visitors the chance to sample local food and wine at A Taste of Music City, taking place at the Gateway Bridge. Many of the area's best restaurants and breweries will provide samples, while local musicians will play live jazz music. The event lasts from 5:00 to 9:00 p.m., and costs $35 for advance purchase and $45 for same-day tickets. An overnight package is available at the Doubletree Nashville that includes two tickets and a deluxe room for $169. Tickets and reservations can be purchased and booked through the Taste of Music City website. Nashville June Savings Nashville is an affordable destination year-round, but package deals make it even more attractive, especially those that incorporate lodging with the arts. Many specials are available through the Nashville Convention and Visitors Bureau. For instance, packages for the special exhibit, "I Can't Stop Loving You: Ray Charles and Country Music" start at $139 and include a one-night stay at a select hotel, two tickets to the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, a tour of historic RCA Studio B, and the Music City Hits Jazz and Blues CD. Prices vary depending on hotel property. Tickets to the museum and studio tour are regularly $23.95. Another great way to save a little extra this June is the Music City Total Access Attraction Pass. For only $35, visitors can choose any four attractions from a list of 12, including the Adventure Science Center which costs $9 for adults; the Cheekwood Botanical Garden and Museum of Art which costs $10 for adults; the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum which costs $19 for the smallest adult package; and the General Jackson Showboat, which starts at $16. The pass also includes free admission to the Parthenon. Tickets must be picked up in person at the 5th & Broadway Nashville Visitor Information Center. Nashville International Airport is served by low-cost carrier Southwest, as well as many other major airlines. With so many concerts, open-mike nights, and festivals, Nashville is a music lover's dream destination. The city, however, is devoted to all aspects of the arts, and on any given day, visitors can find a new exhibit or a new club simply by wandering around aptly-named "Music City."
