If you buy something through our links, we may earn money from our affiliate partners. Learn more.As a website owner, writer, blogger or social media influencer you work hard creating quality content. Chances are you dream of finding the best ways to make money from your efforts — and that includes the best affiliate programs.Savvy content creators look for the highest earning opportunities that are relevant to their audience. That way they can earn cash at the same time as they serve their readers, by highlighting products and services they've taken the time to investigate and carefully select.The great news is that even people with small social followings or the owners of small blogs can make money from their content. With affiliate marketing you can literally earn while you sleep — waking up to see a nice juicy commission in your dashboard. Wouldn't that be wonderful?The only problem is, there are thousands of affiliate earning opportunities. How do you find the top affiliate programs? That's where this article can be your guide. We help you focus on choosing the best programs and networks for your needs.What is an Affiliate Program?An affiliate program is a program set up by a merchant to pay other parties for each new lead or sale they bring in. The party bringing in the lead or sale is usually a website publisher, content creator or blogger, called an "affiliate." From the merchant's standpoint, the model is attractive because the merchant only pays if a defined action occurs leading to increased sales.Marketing affiliates like this business model because they make money by serving their readers with great suggestions for products and services. And they don't have to create their own products to sell — they simply insert affiliate links in their content. Creators can focus on content and maintaining good relations with their audience — while the merchant handles sales, invoicing, delivery and customer support process.Finding the Best Affiliate ProgramsWith so many programs to choose from, it's daunting to select a handful to promote. So we've curated a list of what we consider the best affiliate programs for entrepreneurs, small business owners, creators and bloggers. We further broke down the list by popular categories that may be attractive to you.Not every category will be relevant to your audience. Focus on finding the best programs covering offerings your audience cares about. Likewise, you should have a passion for the offerings you are going to promote. If you are not interested in them, then skip over them — because your lack of interest will be obvious.Last but certainly not least, choose from among the affiliate programs that will pay you more. After all, you're going to work hard on your content to serve your audience. So you should be paid well.Best Recurring Commission Affiliate ProgramRecurring commission affiliate programs are where you earn repeat commissions from the same sale, over time. For example, let's say a reader uses your affiliate ID to sign up for a monthly software service at $20.00 per month. You earn a 30% commission initially — or $6.00 (20 x .30 = 6). But in this case, you would also earn 30% or $6.00 every month thereafter as a recurring commission, as long as the reader continues to use that service. In a year, you would make $72.00.That's just from one affiliate sale. Imagine over time that you make 100 sales. That would bring you up to $7,200 a year (72 x 100 = 7,200). See the potential? Here are the best recurring revenue affiliate programs:SEMRushSEMrush's affiliate program Berush, offers up to 40% in lifetime commission from SEMRUSH subscription sales.
