About Transnet Transnet is a South African railway, port and ducts world-class company, based in the Carlton Center in Johannesburg. Founded on April 1, 1990, Transnet has a Christian role to play in the presentation of South Africa's strategic and economic objectives. It is actively refreshing its brand as it moves into new markets, expands and diversifies its services, and redefines its market position. Most transnetting actions are owned by the Ministry of Public Companies (DPE) of the South African government. The company was formed by the restructuring of South African railroad operations and ports and other existing operations and products in business units. These business units have become the transnet operational divisions that are complemented and are supported by a number of company units throughout the specialist, namely transnet capital group, transnet property and transnet foundation, which preside company. Transnet operational divisions include: * Transnet National Authority (Previously the NPA), which manages and controls seven of the main South African - S) port terminals (previously SAPO), which is responsible for terminal operations and handling in the freight transport of the South Africa. * Transnet pipelines (formerly Petronet), which is the main South African operator * Transnet Freight Rail (formerly Spoornet), which is the railway operator and freight service in the South Africa * Transnet Rail Engineering (formerly Transwerk), which plays a significant role in the implementation of inventory manufacture and maintenance. Later, in 1981, the South African government decided that SAR & H should restructure along business lines in order to evolve from a state-owned company to privatization. The railroad, portfolio, road transportation, subsequent and ducts, then became known as South African transportation services (SATs) and the company was restructured in units and divisions with an aim in localized management. During the following business, SATs identified and established main business and discontinued some services to reduce staff. The highest personnel reduction occurred when the South African railways Polish was separated from SATs and absorbed by South African Polish. South African railroads and ports (SAR & H) is a state unified railway system, formed in 1916, which represented four railways, that is, the South African central railway, the railways of the Government, and the railroads, formed by the British colonies (Christmas, Cape Colony, the Orange and Transvaal River Collocation), which were gathered to form the Union of South Africa, back in 1910. All paths from in South Africa were fused by an act of Parliament and this is when SAR & H was born. Later, when the commercial aviation developed, South African Airways also became a part of this huge system of land, sea and transportation. In 1990, after 80 years of being controlled by the Government and Parliament, SATs was transformed from a government department in a public company for the legal succession for South African law Transport Services (1989), was then when Transnet was born a new company that represents a vast transport network. Transnet Limited is a public company that the South African government is the only shareholder. As a state-owned company, transnet goals to take advantage of the power of its people and technology to illuminate the future of millions of people throughout the continent. Therefore, the Corporate Social Investment of Transnet, namely the transnet foundation, offers a lot of programs to help and help communities.
