Get your monthly gift (the gift you never wanted) about every 28 days when your body is not pregnant. Speaking of health, in practice the ovary that your ovary releases every month is not fertilized with sperm, so your uterus loses its coating to start over for the next waiting game "will be pregnant". It is quite normal for a menstrual cycle to go from 21 to 45 days. Our bodies are all different, so it is extremely unlikely that they have a perfect 28-day cycle. As for the actual period, it usually lasts from 2 to 7 days. Anything that exceeds a week is called menorrage and is considered abnormal. The bleeding for more than a week, especially if it is very heavy, can lead to anemia and other problems that you want your doctor to know about. If the Crimson tide is coming for the second time this month, there is definitely something wrong with your body. Most likely what you are experiencing is not at all a second menstruation, but a bleeding or stain between menstruation. Here's what your vagina might try to tell you.1. Birth control If you take the pill or another form of hormonal birth control as an IUD, and the extra visit of Aunt Flow is quite common. According to a 2016 contraception study, irregular bleeding is an important reason why 46% of unsatisfied women of their contraceptive stop using it. If you're new to hormonal, your changing hormones can lead to further bleeding. Some women always experience spotting between periods On the pill. Forget to take your BC or take the pill at different times every day it can also lead to spotting. If you have just gone out the pill, you could even experience more bleeding as your body tries to adapt to your new hormonal levels. It may take a few months for your cycle to get Normal.2 again. Pregnanced you have a small passenger on board the train, you can feel a sighting that resembles a light time. When the fertilized ovum is implanted in your uterus, it can dig and cause bleeding. The plant bleeding usually appears in brown or pink and will only last a few hours to about 3 days. 3. ectopic pregnancy Difference of normal pregnancy, an ectopic pregnancy occurs when the fertilized egg sticks in the wrong place (outside of the uterus). This usually happens in the fallopian tube, and can be dangerous for life. Ectopic pregnancies represent about 1-2% of pregnancies. Contact your doctor immediately if you have strong bleeding with acute or laching pain (pelvis, abdomen, shoulder or neck), gastrointestinal problems, dizziness or fainting. 4. Spontaneous abortion Pregnancy can also cause unexpected bleeding. If you find that this second period is unusually heavy and is accompanied by cramps at the bottom of the abdomen or back, you may have a spontaneous abortion. According to the Mayo Clinic, about 10-20% of pregnancies ends with an abortion when the mother knows how to be pregnant, which means that many women who abort (usually before the 12th week) didn't even know they are pregnant. 4. Fibromium heavy and painful period or bleeding between a cycle and the other (hello, second cycle) is a sign that you have fibroids. Fibroids are non-cancerous tumors that grow on the uterine wall. Very, fibroids are very rarely carcinogens. The women's health office notes that 20-80% of women has fibroids at age 50. However, fibroids are more common between 40 and 50 years. 5. CISMILE to fibroids, ovarian cysts can cause a bonus period. When these pockets full of liquid form on an ovary, they can produce hormones that interfere with the menstrual cycle. Most cysts do not cause problems, but if they are too large they can push on the bladder or break.6. PCOSTO Polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS), which occurs when there is a pile of small cysts in the ovaries, can also lead to a further episode of Shark Week. A woman with PCOS also produces more testosterone that prevents the egg to grow properly. According to the Hormone Health Network, 7 à € 10% of women in their years who make the child have PCOS and the syndrome is the most common culprit for sterility. 7. Endometriosis nobody really wants to enter the Endo club (SUP, Hough). But if you are having a "extra period" it could be endometriosis. Women with endometriosis have a fabric that grows outside the uterus similar to uterine fabric (endometrium) .Second the Mayo Clinic, this fabric is thickened, breaks and e just like the uterine wall would normally be, but it is trapped elsewhere in the body like the ovaries, phallopious tubes, pelvic fabric, or the intestine. Endometriosis can cause serious pain, scar tissue, adhesions and fertility problems .8. Sexually transmitted infection (STI) usually if something strange is happening below, these is the first thing that comes to mind if you haven't been careful. Steep causes a lot of unpleasant symptoms, including bleeding. If you are experiencing a lot of pain in the Netherlands accompanied with cold symptoms and strange discharge, you could have a TSI. Note: While not technically a TSI, pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) is usually a result of bacteria entering your lady bits from sexual relationship, especially from gonorrhea or chlamydia infections. PID can cause extra bleeding, especially while or immediately after you are getting it, as well as lower abdominal pain, vomiting, unloading and fever. 9. Thyroid problems The thyroid creates a hormone that helps your whole body to work on the right, including your menstrual cycle. If your body does too thyroid hormone (hyperthyroidism) or thyroid hormone too small (hypothyroidism), it is possible to have irregular periods (hello, depending on the period!) As well as light or heavy periods. 10. Early menopause à € œCambamentoâ € should not show up until you are half-ages, but it can happen soon. The Cleveland Clinic Note about 1 percent of women under 40 and 5 percent under 45 go into early menopause (Dr. gave you genetics!). If you are experiencing premature menopause, the periods can become irregular and you will have standard menopausal symptoms such as hot flashes and mood swings. 11. Stress If you are stressed by your mind, your body takes a huge success. It is much easier to get sick and can also mess with your cycle. A 1005 studio of 100 female doctors discovered that high levels of stress are associated with irregular cycles. If you are stressed, you could have extra bleeding or losing your period of all. 12. Weight increase or weight loss Earn or lose a pair of pounds is unlikely to change the cycle. But, if you earn or lose a lot of weight quickly, you could pour the flow. Crazy weight changes mess with your hormones, which is the captain of all your period problems. You can also watch your flow to get an idea of what's going on with your body during the period. Like our cycles, our periods are all quite different and can also differ every day, from which the pads and pads of subtle sizes to supersize. Depending on where you are in your cycle, your period can be brilliant red, dark red, pink or brown. You can also experience some clots, which is normal until it's bigger than a quarter. Spotting on the other hand is Usually extremely light in terms of flow and is typically brown or pink in color. Unloading or cervical fluid (also called mucus, but we will save you to read that word again) is also completely normal during your cycle and is a one How fertile you are. Unc School of Medicine describes the cervical liquid like anything, from the clear wet, creamy, white, yellow, or transparent and elasticated as a white egg. Exhaust from this kingdom It is a signal that you have an infection or another health problem. According to Cleveland Clinic, discharge that makes it pruritus or swelling, bad smell, or seems foamy, big as a ricotta, green, yellow (different than usual), or gray is a sign that you have an infection. It could be anything, from a yeast (big) infection to a STI, so call your doctor if something strano happens. If you look like a double characteristic of Carrie for months at a time, and have been having strong hemorrhages, Unusual secretions or pain, it is time to call the doctor. Remember when we said as abnormally long, heavy, and additional periods can lead to anemia? Well, the anemia can lead to a lot of health problems. Call your doctor if you have lower abdominal pain, if you feel very tired or weak, and if you are having a heavy period (we talk to one or two swabs every hour) with big clots a quarter dollar.InlTre, the pain and the Strange secretions could be a sign of a TSI that needs immediate care or a chronic disturbance that needs care. If possible, before visiting the doctor, monitor symptoms and the most days to help you get to the bottom of the problem. problem.
