Entire apple music library to phone

Over time, it is not uncommon to build a large library of music and media on your Mac. If you want to share that content with other people so that, for example, your family members can listen to your music library, it's a pretty simple process on Apple's devices. You can do this through Apple's Home Sharing feature or share the playlists you created in Apple Music. In this article, we will explain both methods for you so that you can start immediately. Speaking of Apple's Music app, in MacOS Catalina the company split iTunes into three distinct apps — Music, TV and Podcast. If you're trying to share an iTunes library, you'll find it's no longer possible on your Mac. If you want to know how to share a music library in iTunes, we have a guide for you on this subject as well. Setting up the sharing of home Apple devices have a function called Home Sharing which is designed to allow you to share, transmit and import various media files from up to five devices — they are Mac devices, PC, iOS or Apple TV — which are connected to the Wi-Fi network. Step 1: Make sure any device you want to share with is signed using the same ID Apple and has been authorized to reproduce items purchased on that Apple ID. Step 2: On your Mac, open System Preferences by clicking the Apple icon, and then click System Preferences. Step 3: Click Sharing, and then click Sharing media in the left sidebar. Step 4: Check the check box next to Home then enter the username and password of Apple ID and click Enable Home Share. Now you will see a dialog box that tells you that Home Sharing has been enabled. Use Home Sharing on a Mac Now that home sharing has been enabled, you want to start sharing your content in Apple Music. Step 1: Make sure that any device you want to access or share an Apple Music library is on, does not sleep and is running Apple Music. Step 2: Open the Music app and sign in with your Apple ID (if you are not already). Step 3: Click the down arrow next to the Library in the left sidebar. Step 4: You will see a list of libraries that have been shared with you. Click on what you want to access and you will see it loaded in Apple Music. All the playlists that were created in the shared library will also be shown in the left sidebar. Using the home sharing on iOS Home Sharing can also be accessible from your iOS or iPadOS device. That's it. Step 1: Open the Settings app on iOS and scroll down to Music; tap it. Step 2: At the bottom of the window under Home Sharing, tap If you are not already signed with your Apple ID. If you are signed, you will see the email address of your ID Apple displayed on the screen. Step 3: Open the Music app, then tap Library in the bottom toolbar, then Home Sharing. Step 4: Choose a library and wait for Music to download it on your device. Once done, you can reproduce the shared content. Share your media with guests What happens if you want to share your library with someone else who has a different id apple? do not fear, as it is as easy to do. Step 1: Open system preferences on your mac, click sharing, and then click media sharing in the left sidebar. Step 2: In the bottom of the window, check the check box next to share media with guests. Step 3: Click options. on the right side. Step 4: To request a password when people try to access your multimedia library, check the check box next to request password, then enter a password in the adjacent box. Step 5: You can choose to share all your multimedia elements or just the selected things. for the latter option, click selected playlists, and then choose exactly which types of media you want to share. Family sharing home sharing is a great way to sync all the apple devices in your home, but what about syncing with people in your life? here is where family sharing enters. First, we make a quick distinction. home sharing deals with synchronizing media between devices, while family sharing concerns sharing purchases between accounts. with family sharing, you can sync your purchases on the app store, apple tv and also apple music with five other accounts, whether they are friends or family. to set family sharing on apple music, you will have to move to the family plan. this is $15 per month, up to $10 for the individual account. each person then gets their profile on apple music, where you can send them playlists and songs and see what they are listening to. exhibitionWhat you're listening to If you and your friends really love music and want to constantly share what you're listening to, Apple Music will let you do it. Users can go to your profile and see what you are listening to at that time. They can also display any playlist you made public. You can activate this function in macOS and iOS. To activate the function in iOS: Step 1: Open Apple Music and tap the tab For you. Step 2: Tap the image icon in the upper right corner of the screen. Step 3: Click Edit under your name and image. Step 4: Scroll down and activate listening. To turn it on in macOS: Step 1: Open Apple music and tap the tab For you. Step 2: Tap the image icon in the upper right corner of the screen. Step 3: Click Edit on the right side of the screen. Step 4: On the right side, under Choose who can follow your activity, select Additional Privacy Settings. Step 5: Choose listening A, which will cause a blue tick to materialize next to it. Share a playlist of Apple Music When you share your music through Apple Music, you don't have to worry about your guilty pleasure downloads. Instead, you can select a certain playlist to share directly with someone instead of giving them access to the entire music library. To send the playlist, make sure that the recipient can access their Apple Music account with an active Apple Music subscription. Step 1: With your iPadOS or iOS, find which playlist you'd like to share. There will be three points under the title of the playlist that will give you the option of Share when you click on them. You will be able to send the playlist in various ways, such as text messages, emails, via AirDrop, or even through Facebook. Step 2: You will follow the same initial steps on your Mac—tap the three points under the playlist you are trying to share. After clicking this option, choose Share Playlist.
