Note to users: not all PICOL features can be compatible with the browser. We recommend using Chrome, Firefox, or Edge for the best experience. Known problems: PICOL Advanced Search features are not compatible with the Mac version of the Safari browser. Welcome to the database of pesticide labels of the Washington State Parasite Management Resource Service. This free and searchable database is managed by Washington State University through funding provided by the Washington State Department of Agriculture, Oregon Department of Agriculture, Oregon State University and WSU. PICOL contains information selected from registered pesticide products in Oregon, Washington or both states. Washington's data include Section 3, Section 25b, Section 24c, Section 18, adjuvants and federal complementary labels. It does not include EUPs. Oregon data includes Section 3, Section 25b, Section 24c and federal complementary labels. It does not include EUP labels or Section 18. PICOL provides electronic copies (i.e. PDF) of most Washington and many Oregon registered labels. PDFs are accepted only directly from WSDA and ODA. NOTE: WEB WORKERS are only for PURPOS INFORMATION. THIS DATABASE IS NOT A SUPPORT FOR ACTIVITIES, READING, AND HAS ADOPTED DIRECTIONS. This site offers three search options: Express and Quick Searches are only available for current data, while Advanced Search allows users to search for current records or for newly deleted products. Search results can be exported manually to Excel® and APIs can be created for automated searches. PICOL does not include tolerance information or maximum residue limits. WSPRS staff recommends users to access the EPA teaching page on the search for the Federal Regulations Code or the Global MRL database. A note on organic products in PICOL: Certified organic operations must request approval from their certificate before using any input on organic or land crops, or in an organic processing plant. Users are responsible for confirming the organic status of any product before use. PICOL organic denominations reflect the approval of the certificate at a given time; because the state can change without notice, always check the current WSDA Organic Program or OMRI lists for the most current product status. The organic designation in PICOL is given only to products approved for organic use by WSDA, OMRI, EPA, or other certificates approved by the USDA National Organic Programme. WSPRS does not actively seek or stress organic state information from OMRI, EPA, or otherWith the exception of the data received by the WSDA organic program, Picol's "Organic" designation is based exclusively on the information contained in a product label received from WSDA or ODA. Graphana supports Querying Prometheus. The Graphana data source for Prometheus is included by graphana 2.5.0 2.5.0 Below is an example of a graphic dashboard that interrogates prometheus for data: installation to install graphana see the official graphic documentation. Using by default, graphana will listen to http: // localhost: 3000. The default login is "admin" / "admin". Creating a Prometheus data source To create a Prometheus graphic data source: click "Cogwheel" in the sidebar to open the configuration menu. Click on "Data sources". Click on "Add data source". Select "Prometheus" as the type. Set the URL of the appropriate Prometheus server (for example, http: // localhost: 9090 /) Adjusts other data source settings as desired (for example, choosing the right login method). Click "Save and Test" to save the new data source. Below is a configuration of the sample data source: creating a Prometheus chart follow the standard mode to add a new graphic graph. Then: Click the title of the chart, then click "Edit". Under the "Metric" tab, select the Prometheus data source (lower right). Enter any prometheus expression in the "query" field, while using the "metric" field à €
