It was released in 1999 as the lead single of their album Hooray for Boobies, which was released the following year in the United States and the United Kingdom. "The Bad Touch" became a major success in Europe throughout late 1999 and early 2000, reaching number one in Flanders, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Norway, Scotland, Spain and Sweden and peaking in the top 10 in Austria, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Switzerland and the United Kingdom. Outside of Europe, it peaked at number five in Australia, number four in New Zealand, number nine in Canada and number 52 in the United States. The song was remixed by many artists, including God Lives Underwater, KMFDM and Eiffel 65, and was referenced by Eminem in his song "The Real Slim Shady." (June 2012) (Learn how and when to remove this message) The video of the song features the band dressed in "monkeyrat" costumes with oversized ears, in several locations in Paris, (including the Place de l'Éstrapade, Avenue de Saxe, and Champ de Mars), and the Eiffel Tower is visible in many places. All right. During the video, the band uses cockguns to shoot tranquilizer darts into the buttocks of four young women passing by, then take them away. So they use a fishing rod to address a croissant in front of a group of chefs, enticing them to follow. The band members dance for a few seconds and attract three chefs afterwards. The band members swallow several pharists before finding two effeminate gay men in a coffee shop, who are then beaten on the head with baguettes and knocked unconsciously. A MIME artist played by Actor Giordano Prentice is caught in a net and thrown into a cage with the four women, three chefs and a gay couple in a parody of animal collectors who capture frightened specimens. The band leaps around the cage, mocking their prisoners. As the song stretches to the end, the prisoners are released and dance together in formation on the street. The MIME artist escapes and it's over A robbery speed 5 car led by IÄks.s thÄnder. The video without censorship of the video shows the band that plays with and eating a semi-liquid brown food, with the implication is the diarrhea and a beginning that presents her sex in a a position rather than dance as in the clean version. In some versions there is also the violent capture of the gay couple. Polemiche A scene of the video with a couple of gay men sharing fries and are then beaten by band members with baguettes, was cut after the first.[4] GLAAD complained about the scene with MTV stating that "a scene of gay aggression in any context is unacceptable in today's climate".[4] MTV reviewed the video and suggested Geffen Records to cut the scene. The singer Jimmy Pop commented: "I would give any gay two tickets for Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical of his choice if he could describe exactly who will become violent on that scene."[5] Elenchi of the tracks US 12-inch single[6] A1.
