Last updated on 25 August 2021 As a recruiter, I met and interviewed hundreds of candidates who have no idea who they are. Without a personal mark, candidates fight to answer the question: "Tell me about yourself - who are you?" They have no idea who they are, what their strengths are, and how they can add value to society. They present their CV believing that their CV is the key to their career success. In some ways, your CV still has its use. However, in today's job market, you need more than one CV to stand out in a crowd. According to Celine Da Costa: "The personal brand is essentially your golden ticket to networking with the right people, be hired for a dream job, or build an influential business." She believes that "a strong personal brand allows you to distinguish yourself in a supersaturated market by exposing the audience desired to your vision, skill and personality in a way that is strategically aligned with your career goals." A personal brand opens your world to so many career opportunities that you would never be exposed with just your CV. What is your personal brand?" Personal branding is how you market your uniqueness distinctively." —Bernard Kelvin Clive Today, the job market is very competitive and hard. Having a great CV will let you go to this point because everyone has a CV, but no one else has your own distinctive personal brand! It is your personal brand that differentiates you from all others and this is what people buy—you. Your personal brand is your brand on the world. That's how you interact with people and the world see you. It is your legacy—it is more important than a business brand because your personal brand lasts forever. I coached people who have a very successful career, and come to me because they suddenly found out they are not getting opportunities or having conversationsThey would have them on their next role. They are having what I call a "career casting," all because they do not have a personal brand. A personal brand helps you become aware of your differences and uniqueness. Allows you to positionIn a way that makes you distinguish from the package, especially among other potential job candidates. Don't frighten me, have a fantastic curriculum and a great LinkedIn profile is important. However, there are some steps you need to take to have a CV and connected in the profile that is aligned with those you are, the value you offer to the market, and the personal guarantee that provides results. Building your personal brand is about strategically, creatively, and professionally presenting what makes you, you. Knowing who you are and the value you bring to the table allows you to be more informative, agile and adaptable to the dynamic world of evolving work. So that you can avoid having a series of career thefts. Your personal brand is essential for your successful career in her article of her, because the personal brand is more important than ever. Caroline Castrillon outlines the key reasons why a personal brand is essential for success career. According to Castrillon, â € œThe reason is that it is more popular for recruiters to use social media during the interview process. According to a 2018 careerbuilder survey, 70% of employers use social media to view candidates during the recruitment process, and 43% of employers use social media to check current employees.â € The first thing I do as a recruiter when I want to check a candidate or a coaching customer is to watch them over Linked in or other social media platforms, such as Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Your fingerprint is the window that highlights the world you are. When you don't have control on how you want to be seen, you're committing a big mistake because you're leaving someone else to make a judgment for you who you are. As Jeff Bezos, Amazon's founder once said, â € œThe brand is what people say about you when you're not in the room. She's in her book, Becoming, Michelle Obama writes about the importance of having a personal brand and her journey to define her personal brand. You wrote that: â € If you don't go out and define, you will be quickly and inaccurately defined by others. When you have a personal brand, you are in control. You know exactly what the people of you will say when you leave the room. The magic of a personal brand is that you give you control on how you want to be seen in the world. Your trust and self-credulità allow you to take advantage of opportunities and make informed decisions about your career and your future. Do not experience the frustrations of a career collapse or be in a crossroads not knowing what to do after with your career or your life. With a personal brand, you have attention, clarity and a strategy to move forward towards future success. Creating your personal brand does not happen during the night. It takes a lot of work and self-reflection. Will be To get out of your comfort zone once, but many times. The good news is that the more time you spend out of your comfort zone, more you will like to be being Being outside of your comfort zone is where you can test profitability and optimize your personal brand. 5 Key steps to create your personal brand These five steps will help you create a personal brand that will give you the results you want with your career and life. 1. Set your personal goals What do you want to do over the next five years? What will your future do in the next five or ten years? What's important to you? If you can answer these questions, then you're on the right path. Otherwise, you have to start thinking about them. 2. Create the unique value proposal Create your unique value proposal asking yourself these four questions: What are your personality features? What benefit do you offer people? Who are you and why people have fun working with you? What do you do and what do you want people to do for them? How do you solve their problems? What makes you different from others like you? The answers to these questions will give you the information you need to create your professional history, which is the main step to create your personal brand. 3. Write your professional history knowing who you are, what you want, and the unique value you offer is essential for you to create your professional history. People remember stories. Your personal story incorporates your value proposal and tells people you are and what makes you unique. That's what people will remember about you. 4. Determining which platforms will support your personal brand to decide which social media accounts and online platforms will best represent your brand and will allow you to share your voice. In a professional capacity, with a LinkedIn profile and a CV that reflects your brand is essential for your positioning in relation to role opportunities. People will connect with you because you will like the story you're saying. 5. Become recognized to share your knowledge and skills A great way to promote yourself is by sharing knowledge and helping others. This is where you show yourself to know your things and get an exposure to it. You can do it through social media, write, comment, video, join professional groups, networking, etc. Find your style and uniqueness and use it to attract customers, opportunities, or jobs you want. The importance of having a personal brand will not go away. In fact, it is the only way you can stand out and be unique in a complex world that changes work. If you don't have a personal brand, someone will do it for you. If you let this happen, you have no control and you may not like the story they create. Giving out of others takes time and investment. Most people can't make change alone, and it's here that involves a personal brand coach is a feasible option to consider.Personal brand coach, working with my customers to create their personal brand is my passion. I love the fact that we can work together to create a personal story thatExactly what people will tell when you leave the room. Listening to the stories of other people is a great way to learn. In his article, 7 Ted Talks About Personal Branding, Rafael Dos Santos presents the best Ted Talks in which the speakers share their stories on â € œWhere, â € â € œWhat, â € â € â € œHatch â € personal branding. ((Guidedpr: 7 Ted Talks About Personal Branding)) Take some time to listen to these speakers who share their stories and thoughts on personal branding. It will definitely learn so much about how you can start your journey to define yourself and take control of your professional and personal life. Your personal brand, without a doubt, is your secret weapon for your career success. As Michelle Obama said, â € œThe story is what you have, what you will always have. It's something you own.â € So, take your story. Go to the trip to create your personal brand that defines who you are, highlights your unique and the value you offer to the world.
