This phrase can interpret as: ...So the birth of a new dynasty was no other Heralde from a favorable avalanche Omen Than excavation of some Hary Artefact. Or not any favorable Omen marked the rise of a new digging dynasty than some Hary Artefact. Or erupt of the favorable Omen Hrewed the birth of a new dynasty as much as the excavation of some artifacts can do. If these interpretations are correct, it is legitimate to say the following: (not an extract from the book) History of China is so essential for master's degree nearby that no history student should ignore, no more history of India. It can be paraphrased as: history of China is essential to explore it is the history of India. I am certainly not the function of ... no more phary. Can anyone explain?
