Administrative Sales Total Other Net Income/Expenditure Proceeds from Continuing Operations Net profit available to ordinary shareholders Hans/Pxabay Some of Florida's most important natural resources are coasts, seafood, minerals, citrus fruits, sugarcane, berries, palm trees and forests. Each plays an important role in the state's economy. Florida has a more continuous coastline than any other state in the United States, and contributes to the local economy in some ways. Tourism is Florida's number one industry and, in addition to the subtropical climate, the coast attracts millions of people who spend billions of dollars here every year. The coasts offer more than 663 miles of beaches for recreational purposes, and many hotels, restaurants and other properties have been built around them. The coastline of Florida is also home to numerous ports that facilitate the import and export of goods. At Coastlines Just off the coast of Florida, you'll find the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. Inside the state, you will find more freshwater springs than any other state in the nation. In total, the state has about 6,000 square meters of coastal and inland waters, most of which are abundant with fresh fish and other seafood. In 2016, the state provided 4.5% of all seafood harvested in the United States that year. Shrimps, lobsters, crabs, groupers, mackerel, gag, mullet, oysters, tuna and swordfish are the main sources of economic activity. Minerals Behind agriculture and tourism, mining is the third largest state industry. Hair. Phosphate and oil are the most extracted minerals. Most phosphate mines are located just east of Tampa in central Florida. Florida phosphate is mainly used for and agricultural supplements, and also used in some consumer goods such as toothpaste, soft drinks, light bulbs, shaving cream, films and vitamins. Citrus Fruit Most of citrus fruits, in particular oranges and orange juice available in the United States are grown in Florida. Whereas citrus fruits are sand 226: 128? Native to Florida, historians believe that the Spanish explorer Ponce de Leon brought the seeds to the area, and they thrived in the climate. Since then, the year has been part of the landscape and economy. Sugarcane 160: A 160? Sugarcane is another food source that naturally grows in any part of Florida, even if it is not a native plant. Christopher Columbus is believed to have introduced it into the area. Today, it is a large part of Florida's agricultural economy. Forests are also an important natural resource. There are about fourteen million hectares of commercial forests within the state, filled with trees of both hardwoods and softwoods that are gathered to make commodities. Florida 128: s 1154860 acres of protected state forests also serve as a source of recreation and education. They provide places for excursions, horse walks, panoramic walks, birding, wildlife discovery and camping. Saw Palmetto Berries 194: Palm saw Berries are often used in some medical and alternative medicine to treat prostate conditions, such as an enlarged prostate, prostate surgery complications and prostate swelling. Most palm fruits harvested in the United States come from wild palm trees in Florida. They are one of the most common plants in the state. 160: BEFORE REFERENCE. Canadian Natural is one of the largest independent crude oil and natural gas producers in the world. The Company continually targets cost effective alternatives to develop our portfolio of projects and to deliver our defined growth plan, thereby creating The report projects a constrained outlook for Canadian oil production from 2019 to 2035. Although production will increase by 1.27 million barrels per day (b/d) by 2035, that growth rate is about 6% less than CAPP's 2018 forecast. Total annual production is expected to increase by an average of 3% until 2021, then slow to an average growth rate of 1% annually. Canadian oil and natural gas provided $105 billion to Canada's gross domestic product (GDP) and supported almost 400,000 jobs across the country in 2020. It also provided $10 billion in average annual revenue to governments for the period 2017 to 2019. This revenue helps pay for roads, school and hospitals. Our financial discipline, a strong balance sheet, and capacity to internally generate funds flow provide us the means to grow.
