Car lines to pass through tolls can get incredibly long, making for frustrating commuters — especially if you are fast. Fortunately, the early 1990s saw the dawn of E-ZPass, which allowed drivers to eliminate the need to stop tolls through 17 states in the Midwest and the Eastern United States. So, what is E-ZPass — and how exactly does it work? E-ZPass is an electronic toll collection system (ETC) that allows commuters and travellers to prepay with cash or a credit card so that they can easily bypass toll roads, bridges and galleries in some Midwest states and the United States East Coast. E-ZPass is currently accepted in the following states: Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia and West Virginia. courtesy photo: Gordon Chibroski/Portland Press Herald/Getty Images Once registered in the system, passers are able to drive directly through a toll station without stopping thanks to the E-ZPass specific lanes. Through the E-ZPass program of their state, drivers can choose from a variety of monthly prepaid plans, depending on which they better adapt to their driving habits. In addition, companies can purchase a business account named appropriate with E-ZPass for five or more employees. Better than anything, some state tolls are actually discounted if drivers pay via the E-ZPass system. I don't know if E-ZPass is worth it? Although other ETC systems in non-E-ZPass states use similar technology, the expanding E-ZPass has rebranded some of these other ETC systems and toll lanes, making it a big long-term investment. With E-ZPass, drivers receive a toll transponder — a small device that can be easily attached to the windscreen of a vehicle, thus allowing the toll lane to recognize the car as an E-ZPass support. While the vehicle passes through the specified lane for the program, an antenna in the head searches and reads the toll transponder. The driver's E-ZPass account is then charged the correct toll amount. courtesy photo: E-ZPass/Getty Images Do you think you can cheat the system? That's not likely. If a vehicle does not have a transponder, the E-ZPass system takes on this. The cameras attached to the toll square will also make photos of your vehicle and plate, which means that the invoice will find you at the end. You can see if your status offers E-ZPass on the official website of the E-ZPass Group. The company has a complete list of states where the program is offered as well as links to individual state programs. To participate, you will need to fill out an application online, by mail or by fax. Each application requires contact and vehicle information and and a monthly plan and number of transponders you need from E-ZPass. Transponders are free of charge, but customers must keep their accounts with funds so that tolls are paid automatically. Courtesy photo: John Ewing/Portland Press Herald/Getty Images In order to replenish the funds of their account, customers can use the auto-refuelling function, which means that E-ZPass automatically charge the credit card on the file whenever the balance of the account is low. In addition, customers can replenish their accounts with cash, cheque or money order by visiting an E-ZPass Service Center in person. Better still, the brand now offers a "On the Go" package, which provides customers with a transponder and a paid $25 toll balance, making it a great option for people who need immediate access to an E-ZPass. Just be sure to record the transponder within seven days of its first use. Once users have registered online and received their transponder, they are able to create an E-ZPass account online to monitor their toll usage. From these accounts, users are also able to see their account balance and change their method of planning and payment. Courtesy photo: James Leynse/Corbis/Getty Images Aren't you a fan of going completely digital? Users can also obtain their account balance through a detailed statement in the mail on a monthly or quarterly basis or, if the mail is too slow, they can call the automated E-ZPass phone system. If you are constantly on the move and cannot manually control your account, a pay display near the EZPass corridor will display messages while driving, including "low balance" warnings. Simply put, E-ZPass is a cheaper way to travel through toll stations. Drivers should not worry about sitting in long lines or having cash at their fingertips. As pedestrians push through toll squares, the E-ZPass system is also useful in reducing traffic congestion, which in turn helps reduce car emissions, especially in populous areas such as New Jersey and New York. And, depending on where you live, purchasing an E-ZPass can be a great long-term investment. In the interior designer's arsenal, belonging to design trade programs is a tool that sits next to the design pad or the measuring tape. It is a feature of most of the major furniture stores, from big-box dealers such as Williams Sonoma to virtual showrooms such as 1stdibs, offering professionals industry cost-free benefits that include discounts for the shop, product recommendations and dedicated customer service representatives. All you have to do is present a business license or a designer certificate to prove your professional status. A non-brainer, right? But not all programs are created the same. We asked some of the employees at their favorite jobs, and what they could do without them. Here is the 25 percent off Williams-Sonoma Home; 20 per cent off Williams-Sonoma, Inc. brands such as Pottery Barn, West Elm, and rejuvenation; increased discounts over time; tax exemption; flat-rate delivery. Professionals say, "Make our customers happy that we can extend incredible discounts," says Morgan Woodcock of New York-based Mr. Call Designs, whose discount has increased to 30 per cent from 20th to 100th of last year. "The only drawback is that because © are a great company, there is not much customer interface. We do not have a specific representative, and an answer may require 24 to 48 hours. Once, after Williams-Sonoma sent Woodcock the wrong parachutes, the company overnighted the correct order. Inside Reach's store design on Third Avenue in Manhattan. Professionals say Bay Area designer Kriste Michelini loves her DWR representative. "When a product sends us a personalised email to let us know," says Michelini. "He lent us the products for installation when something was ordered again. Once, we were making a glass house and she needed a lamp, and she drove one for us because © What we ordered would not have been to do in time. This is really going beyond. *
