Free barcode scanner to excel spreadsheet

By Stephanie Ellen Microsoft Excel has macro functions which allow users to automate spreadsheets and avoid entering the same information over and over again. Whether formatting a document a particular way, entering a range of information, or producing the same chart types over and over, a macro can help you perform these tasks with the push of a button. Open the spreadsheet where you would like the macro to run. Click the "Developer" tab, then click "Record Macro." Type a name for the macro in the "Macro name" box, then click "OK." The macro recorder will start to record your keystrokes and mouse clicks. Format the document. For example, design a budget document, make a bar graph, or enter information you'd like to enter in other spreadsheets. Click the "Developer" tab, then click "Stop Macro Recording." Your macro is now ready for use. Run the macro by clicking "Developer," then clicking "Macros." Click on the name for the macro you assigned in Step 2, then click "Run." Barcode Scanner by ZXing Team can scan a variety of barcodes on books, products, and shipping labels. Users simply open the application and scan a barcode. Barcode Scanner then gives the option to search the scanned barcode via a "Product Search," "Web Search," or "Shopper Search," all of which are powered by Google.In scanning UPC labels on products, Barcode Scanner often accurately finds the product on any of the search options. When scanning tracking labels, a Web search is useful in determining your courier service and ETA. Barcode Scanner's most notable feature is its ability to scan QR codes and access the URLs, contact information, and calendar events contained within. A recent update also allows for bulk scanning, letting a user scan multiple barcodes that the utility then automatically saves to a history for future reference.Barcode Scanner does have a few flaws. It can accurately find the product I am attempting to scan about 80 percent of the time. I consider this fairly acceptable. The more obscure the item, however, the less likely it is to be found. The app fails when it comes to scanning ISBN barcodes on books. In several trials, neither of the three search options found the book I was looking for.Another limitation comes up when using Barcode Scanner's History feature. Since the history displays only the numbers found in the ISBN or UPC, users may find it difficult to remember what it was they were trying to look for. I had previously scanned a copy of Final Fantasy IX. When looking through the history, I expected to find the name "Final Fantasy" or some derivation. Instead, I saw the number 662248900100. Had I bulk-scanned and wanted to compare Final Fantasy IX prices later, I'd be at a loss. This is not a serious limitation, but it is annoying.Despite its flaws, for simple price comparisons at the grocery store or Best Buy, this application is quite useful. And QR code scanning provides instant access to QR information for surfing the Net and downloading Android apps. While similar utilities such as Google Goggles have more uses, Barcode Scanner by ZXing Team is a simple application with a high level of usability--and it's also free. Yes, and it's as easy as downloading the correct fonts. You don't have to purchase any of those barcode software programs that you can find online unless you need a more unusual kind of code, such as an ISBN or a postal code. Free fonts are available for most of the common barcodes, and fee-based fonts are available for the others (at reasonable prices).There are also many sites that generate barcodes for you, which cost nothing (although some do ask for donations). My favorites include: Online Barcode Generator, which offers (believe it or not) 102 different barcode types, Free Barcode Generator (with 99 different types), and Barcode Generator.org (with 67 different types). Bet you didn't know there were so many different barcodes.If, however, you prefer to generate your own barcodes in Excel (or Word, PowerPoint, or any other program that uses Windows fonts), you can do that as well, and it's really easy.How to download barcode fontsFirst, you need to access the Internet and download the appropriate fonts. The most commonly used barcodes are: UPC-A and UPC-E codes, which means Universal Product Code, are used for consumer products (groceries, household goods, etc.). They are scanned at the Point-of-Sale (POS). EAN-13 and EAN-8 codes, which means European Article Number, are similar in purpose to UPC codes. Code128 codes, which refer to the ASCII 128-character set, are used in logistics for ordering, distribution, and transportation. Code39 codes, which literally means Code 3 of 9, uses 39 digits and characters. These codes are used for the automotive industry, name badges, inventory, and industrial applications. Here's an example of how to use these fonts. 1. Click Barcode Link to locate and download the free barcode fonts for Code128 and Code 39 (use the Free 3 of 9 Extended font called fre3of9x.ttf).2. Double-click the link called Download Code 128 Barcode Font. Click the Save button, then click OK.3. When the Font dialog window opens, click the Install button to add this font to your Windows font folder.4. Repeat steps 1 through 3 for the button called: Download EAN-13 Font. JD Sartain / IDG Worldwide Download the UPC-A and EAN-13 barcode fonts NOTE: To verify that the font was downloaded, open the fonts folder (C:\Windows\Fonts). Click the Date Modified column to sort by the most recent date that the file was modified. The four font files should appear at the top of the list.Enter barcode numbers in ExcelThe rest is even easier. Open a new or existing spreadsheet. For this exercise, which is designed to show you how the barcode fonts work in Excel, follow these instructions: 1. Enter the column header Font Name in A1. Enter the column header Barcode in B1.Enter the following information into cells A3, A6, A9, and A12: Code 39, Code 128, UPC-A, and EAN-13.Enter some product names consisting of numbers and text in B3 and B6, such as: 1excel11 and 4windows4. Copy the same text into cells B4 and B7.Enter 10 numbers in cell B9 and 13 numbers in cell B12. Copy the same names into B10 and B13.Position your cursor on cell B3 and select font 3 of 9 Extend from the Home tab, Font group. Click the small arrow in the bottom-right corner to display a list of all your system's fonts in the C:\Windows\Fonts folder, then scroll down to the applicable font and click it.Move your cursor to cell B6 and do the same as above, but select the font called Code 128.Repeat step 5 for cells B9 and B12, selecting fonts UPC-A and EAN-13, respectively, from the list.Now you can just enter the barcode numbers and select the applicable font to get a usable, scannable barcode for the products you carry. JD Sartain / IDG Worldwide Examples of barcode fonts in Excel Using Excel's barcode add-insUnless you create hundreds of barcodes a week, I recommend using one of the free online barcode generators mentioned above or (if applicable), one of the free barcode fonts listed above. There are add-in programs you can use in Excel to create these barcode fonts, but they are neither free nor cheap. All three programs listed below, however, offer free trial versions.1. TBarCode Office MS Add-In – For a single license, one computer, this one costs $104. You can try a free demo version from this link.2. Barcode Generator for Excel – A single license for this one is $159.3. ConnectCode Barcode for Excel – The single license for this one is $149.If you decide to use one of the add-ins, use these instructions to install the program onto your system.1. Select one of the add-in programs from the links above.2. When the website opens, click the Download or Buy Now button.3. Follow the onscreen instructions to download the add-in to your hard drive. Notice where the system installs the program (drive, path, etc.)NOTE: Most programs are intelligent enough to place the add-in program in the appropriate Excel folder. If that doesn't happen, you will need to know where the program was installed so you can tell Excel later when you activate the add-in.4. With Excel open, select File > Options > Add-Ins.5. If the add-in you just installed is not visible on the list, click the Manage link (at the bottom of the screen), select Excel Add-Ins from the list, then click the Go button. JD Sartain / IDG Worldwide Install Add-Ins 6. When the Add-Ins dialog box appears, place a checkmark in the add-in you want to activate, then click OK.7. If your target add-in is not listed, click the Browse button and navigate to the new Add-In location, select it, and click OK.Once the add-in is installed and activated, follow the instructions on the manufacturer's website to use the new program to create, manage, and print your barcodes.
