Before you start, you will want to make sure your hp printer is activated. Also, to avoid damage to your new ink cartridge, do not open the ink cartridge until you are ready to hear it. follow these steps to replace so ink cartridges. patrick daxenbichler / getty images open the door to the ink cartridge at the front of your printer with small grip. After a few seconds, the ink cartridge should automatically move to the center of the printer. wait until the cartridge has stopped moving and your printer is silent, then press into a cartridge to remove it. open your new ink cartridge and remove the plastic tab, then holding it on the sides with the ink nozzles to the printer, insert the cartridge into a light up angle. press the cartridge until it gets started. Repeat for the other ink cartridge. Close the door to the ink cartridge. It is recommended to ensure that the cartridges are aligned and the printer prints correctly. If you have a laserjet hp printer instead of an ink printer, you will still need to replace the toner cartridges from time to time. the process is quite similar to replacing an ink cartridge, but there are some differences. this is how to do it. andrej popov / getty images lift the portion of the printer scanner, then lift the top cover of the printer until it is instead. Take off the toner cartridge using the handle and slide it up until you removed it. Open your new toner cartridge by pulling the release eye on the outer packaging. Keep the cartridge next to the handle and align it with the inside the printer, then scroll it into the printer until you click on your place. Lower the top cover as well as scanner on the printer. FAQ Where is the ink in an HP printer? The ink is contained in the ink cartridges of the HP Deskjet printers. You will install the tricolor ink cartridge on the left side of the cart and the black ink cartridge on the right side. HP laser printers use toner cartridges instead of ink cartridges. How to make generic ink cartridges work on an HP printer? HP recommends using only authentic HP ink and toner cartridges. And HP cartridge protection measures mean that your HP printer will not be able to recognize generic ink cartridges, as they are incompatible with HP printers. There are some solutions. However, that can deactivate the protection of the HP cartridge. If your printer is not enabled for the internet, go to the Settings menu of your printer and look to disable the protection of the HP cartridge. Select this option and then select Disable. If your printer is enabled for the internet and you use a Windows PC, go to Devices and Printers, select your printer and open your settings. Select Estimated ink levels to open the HP toolbox. Click Cartridge Protection, then choose Disable HP Cartridge Protection. How can you know which ink cartridge is empty on an HP printer? Most HP printers display ink and toner levels directly on the screen. Look for an ink drop icon, a cartridge icon or a level indicator. The screen will indicate if it is your black ink cartridge or your color cartridge. If you use a Windows 10 PC, download the HP Smart app for Windows 10, and display your ink and toner levels. On a Mac, go to the Apple System Preferences Printers and Scanners menu. Select your printer and click Options and Supplies, then click Supply Levels. You will see the current levels of your black and colored cartridges. Thank you for telling us why! By Jennifer Claerr Installing HP printer cartridges on a HP printer is a fairly simple operation. However, are many options that you can use in the print manager to make the process more efficient, and ensure that your documents print properly. Make sure you have the correct HP printer cartridge for your HP printer model. The correct printer models for each ink cartridge are clearly printed on the side of the cartridge case of the printer. You don't need the exact model of the printer; instead, just get the series. For example, I have an HP Officejet 710, so I would look for HP Officejet 700 Series on the side of the cartridge case of the printer. Remove the old HP ink cartridge or cartridges and save them for recycling. You can recycle them at almost any place where ink cartridges are sold. Also, many office stores will give you a merchandise coupon if you deliver the old cartridges to them. Remove the blue film from the mouthpiece of the HP printer cartridge. Turn the cartridge so that the white label with the blue HP logo faces you, the grey part of the cartridge faces up, and the nozzle faces down. Depending on your printer model, the cart will have some black and colored dots at the top. One of these sections will have a black dot, or a black dot with two colored dots next to it. Install the black cartridge here. The other section will have a yellow, red and blue dot on a row. This is where you install the color cartridge. Push the cartridges firmly, but don't force them. Close the printer cover. Check the reading on your printer. You may wonder if you have installed a new or used black cartridge, for example. If the cartridge has been used to print before, even if it is only on your printer, select Used. Otherwise, select new. Make sure there is proper paper loaded into your paper tray. Open your HP printer manager and select Settings and Maintenance. Click on the maintenance tab and select Aligned Impress Cartridge. Click Align. Remove the new printed paper from the document tray. You will see two series of lines in red and black. black. these lines to see which are in the best alignment. Enter the number or letter of the lines best aligned in the dialog box that has appeared on your screen. Click Continue. A new page will be printed. This page will have a box in black and red, and a cross in black and red. Check the new print lines to see if they are correctly aligned. If you are satisfied with the alignment of these lines, you are finished. If they still seem to be out of alignment, repeat steps 4 and 5 to run the alignment again.
