A square shape has angular lines and a strong jaw. The front is generally quite wide, so you would like to choose frames that will soften and balance those corners. Both men and women with a square shape tend to wear curved, oval or round glasses. The soft edged design of frames in these categories will help soften the square features and give the illusion of length to a square-shaped face. Round glasses are a great place to start! Browse our range of round glasses for square shapes here. When shopping for frames online, note where the eyeglass deck sits on your nose. The shapes of the square face tend to fit the styles that sit towards the top of the nose which help to lengthen the face. Try to stick to neutral frame colors like black, brown or turtle and avoid anything super geometric or angular in shape or style. Our favorite method is to look at your reflection in a mirror and outline your facial shape with a lipstick or a erasable pen – remember to wipe down the mirror when you're done! Another method is to take a picture of yourself, then outline the shape of your face with a tracking card. Now you know what kind of facial shape you have you can go ahead and check out our individual guides below to see which style will work best for you. I have a square face square shape square faces are characterized by a square jaw line which is almost as wide as long. You should try... a curved frame (round, oval or cat-eye) Æ this will soften the lantern jaw. If you are looking for a rectangular frame then you should try to choose a frame with softened edges. You should avoid frames with a flat top bar and sharp angles as this can make you look stern and unapproachable. Why not try one of the following frame styles... Find more styles in our category Curved style frames. Famous square faces can include... Katie Holmes, Keira Knightley, Sandra Bullock, Natalie Portman, Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt, Elijah Wood, David Coulthard, Orlando Bloom, Arnold Schwarzenegger. I have a longer rectangular shape of the face Long or rectangular faces are characterized by a longer face than the wide one Æ often this face shape will be characterized by a longer front, high cheekbones and a rounded jaw line. You should try... a larger frame with a wider lens coverage. This will give the illusion of extra width of the face and will help to break the length of the face. You should avoid small, rectangular frames. Why not try one of the following frame styles... Famous rectangular faces can include... Katie Holmes, Keira Knightley, Sandra Bullock, Natalie Portman, Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt, Elijah Wood, David Coulthard, Orlando Bloom, Arnold Schwarzenegger. I have a round or circular shape of the face The round faces are usually as wide as they are tall with a rounded jaw line and rounded cheekbones. You should try angular frames with strong lines to draw attention away from the cheekbones and the jaw line. You should avoid frames that are too small or frames that are round as this can accentuate the softness of the face. Why not try one of the following frame styles... Find more styles our category of frames in angular style. Famous circular faces may include... Hayden Panettiere, Emma Stone, Julia Stiles, Cameron Diaz, Jack Black, Gerard Butler, James Cordon, Leonardo DiCaprio. Posted February 26, 2019 From Vintandork you know what the best glasses are for your round face? Apart from the subjective opinion, there is a bit of science behind the choice of glasses that fit better to a round face . With the right glasses, you can highlight the natural beauty of your face, so how to make it more subtle, longer and more defined. Is it, Æ, Æ, stay tuned and find out how to match your favorite frame styles to Your face shape! First, make sure you have a round face shape first of all, make sure your face is really round. The weight has nothing to do with the appearance of your face. The fact that you are from the plump does not mean that you have a round face. Moreover, most people find that their face is never just a guy. Your face can be between round and in the shape of a diamond, oval and oblong, and so on. The trick consists in identifying the most dominant features and from determining which glasses category is more suitable for your type of face. If the height and width of the face are almost the same, if the cheekbones are not very visible and there are no signs of angular distinctive, then you probably have a round face! Unlike a square shape, a rounded face will not have a jaw or pronounced cheekbones, then choose a pair of slightly larger sunglasses than your face to give him a certain definition. Our best advice on how to choose glasses that fit a round face when you buy a new frame, the general rule is To choose eyeglasses or sunglasses from the shapes that contrast the features of your face. Whether you choose reading glasses or looking for the best shape for a round face, the same principles apply. 1. Choose a corner shape of the frame in other words, for a round face to choose square or rectangular frames, which balances the features and take the structure a a soft signal. Bring the Keen glasses here! KEEN $129 KEEN $129 2. Choose a frame that has nose pads Nosepads are great to choose from whether you have large cheeks or a flat nose. In addition, they are among the best mounting styles for Asian face types, which typically have a flat nose bridge. 3. Choose bold colors and patterns Highlight your skin tone and eye color by choosing the right shades of your frame. You can also create an optical illusion and make your eyes look bigger. 4. Avoid round sunglasses or small circular lenses will direct attention to the softness of the face, exaggerating your characteristics. Instead of making your face look even more round, you want to bring structure and definition by adding some hard corners. Let's go into more detail and show exactly which glasses that fit a round face look like: The best style glasses and shapes for round faces: In this section, we'll browse the sunglasses and the most flattering glasses for round faces through a selection of pictures.
