(2:25 minutes) "The Purple People Eater" is a song of novelty written and interpreted by Sheb Wooley, who reached the number 1 of the Billboard Pop rankings in 1958 from 9 June to 14 July reached N Å ° 12 in Complex in the UK Singles Chart and at the top of the Australian Chart. Composition "The Purple People Eater" tells how a strange creature (described as a "one eye, a horny, flying, Purple people Eater") descends to earth because it wants to be in a rock band 'Roll band. The premise of the song came from a joke told by the son of a friend of Wooley of; Wooley finished make up within an hour. [2] He establishes songs that people eat purple creatures, but not if either is not by viola: I said Mr Purple People Eater, what is your line? He said eating purple people, and is sure well, but this is not the reason why I came to the ground who wants to get a job in a rock 'n Roll band [3] [4] [5] the creature declines also To eat the narrator. "Cause [he is] so hard". The ambiguous of the song was present when it was originally played on the radio. In response to requests from Disc Jockey Radio, listeners attracted the images that show a viola-colored "people Eater". [2] The voice of the violet violet eater is a recording sped-up, giving it a similar, but not as acute or faster voice, as by Mike Sammes 1957 "Pinky and Perky", or "Witch Doctor" by Ross Bagdasarian , another shot from before in 1958; And "The Chipmunk Song" that was released at the end of 1958. (Alvin superstar themselves possibly covered by "Purple People Eater" for their album 1998 A-files;. Alien songs) The sound of a toy saxophone was Produced in such a fashion as the saxophone was originally recorded at a reduced speed. [2] Notable recordings according to Wooley, MGM Records initially rejected the song, saying that it was not the kind of music with which they wanted to be identified. A song acetate reached MCM Records New York office. The acetate has become popular with the young office. Up to 50 people would listen to the song at lunch time. The front office noted, reconsidered their decision, and decided to release the song. [6] The Sheb Wooley version crossed the R & B scoreboards more sold in the warehouse chart, peak at number 18. [7] Jackie Dennis concerned the song in 1958 and the version of him reached N Å ° 29 in the United Kingdom. [8] Judy Garland recorded the song on the 1958 Capitol Records Album Garland at the Grove, accompanied by Freddy Martin & La Di Lei Orchestra of her, released as Capitol T 1118 (mono) and St 1118 (stereo). [9] Wooley recorded another version of the song in 1967, entitled "The Purple People Eater # 2" and credited to his Alter ego much colder, in the MGM label. [10] A cover recorded by the British comedian Barry Cryer reached N Å ° 1 in the Finnish ranking after contractual reasons prevented the Wooley version be released in Scandinavia. [11] Wooley re-recorded the song in 1979 with the title "Purple People Eater", which Records taste published through his subsidiary King Records. [12] Popularity The lasting popularity of the song led to the nickname of the highly effective "eaters People ", the Minnesota Vikings defensive line of 1970, whose colors of the team include purple. [13] From 1982, the largest producer of British toys Waddingtons marketed a children's game inspired by the song. Players competed to remove small" People "from the purple rubber people eater shell, using a tweezers on a wire thread Which activates an alarm if you get in touch with your metal jaws.
