This seÀSÀ E o: E OrganizaÀSÀ the FDA Back to top Today Rogers announced a new program called next, which aims to win the early adopters who want a new phone every year. À © essentially renting your phone for $ 25 or $ 30 / mÁs, depending on whether you want to secure device. You do pay the E no initial cost in your atualizaÀSÀ the E including E ativaÀSÀ or the balance of the remaining device, you surrender your old device, and you get a new phone for $ 0 down it usually costs ATA © $ 250 on a two-year plan. Sounds like a good business, right? Let's go through the details to see if À © everything estÁ cracked to be. First, some background. This structure in the E À © entirely new in the Grand Scheme of Mobile. Telus has something similar called specifically for the iPhone-Only charges $ 9 / mÁs, but the E pay for your device prÁximo and only forgives your current device balance when you're ready to upgrade aft one year. You Tamba © m have to have Apple Care +. In the U.S., AT & T Tamba © m has something called prÁximo, skip the T-Mobile and Verizon has the edge. They sÁ E everyone a little different, but the aparÁncia of things, T-Mobile screws fewer people. Oh, and the Americans can do this every six months instead of once a year. The matemÁtica prÁpria matemÁtica by Rogers, you estÁ saving $ E 275 in the atualizaÀSÀ a score of 3 $ 700 (about the same final cost as a 16 GB iPhone $ 720) aft one year using Rogers Instead of updating the two numbers access agreement. This is also assuming that you get the protective option of the device in the normal plan. These relative savings dive if the protection is not something you need or desire. In addition to your usual service plan, next rogers cost $ 300 after a year to update without device protection. The two-year pattern costs $ 515 to update upgrade One year under these circumstances, which leaves a $ 215 difference between them. Keep in mind that this places the cost of protecting the device at $ 5 / month under next rogers, against the usual $ 10 in a two-year plan. The other thing is that you do not give anything to stay in Rogers followed for more than a year. Your new device still can not be any more than $ 250 on-contract without paying the difference. This means that the savings you are receiving with next decrease more after a year you wait, since you would be spending this time in a two-year contract paying your device balance. In addition, if your new phone is worth less than $ 250, then again youÁ e is losing the money you saved in comparison with the two-year plan. On the other hand, if you want a high capacity of iPhone, youu á € will have to end up paying the difference between the $ 250 allocated by the following and the standard cost of two years. The Catch The real problem here is that you have to give Rogers support your iPhone in order to get your next. Meanwhile, Rogers begins to reform the device that take back and sell it one more time. This is in many ways a DealBreaker. Rogers is essentially betting that you can can (or not) sell the Year-Old device elsewhere for $ 275. To be fair, this gets more complicated in a two-year contract since the age of two Iphone 4s is sold for about $ 180. The other problem is that this is only really worth for more expensive devices, and even so, not for much. All the numbers that were going with are for telephones that retail for $ 700 or less openly, and are assuming that it is updating something that is $ 250 on-contract exactly. Let's say that this plan was created for anyone's 8GB iPhone 4s improvement for 5C 16 iPhone GB, and they are ignoring the insurance device. Cost of iPhone 4S: $ 450 Cost Up-Front: $ 0 Balance FlexTab: $ 450 ($ 225 / year) Proper and Protection of Devices Costs: $ 300 / year with next VS $ 0 / year in the contract of Two years remaining payment FlexTab: $ 0 with next vs. $ 225 in two years cost of updating contract devices (assuming even though in the contract Iphone 4s): $ 0 with advance against $ 95 with two years of savings contract with the next: $ 20, but you lose your iPhone 4s after a year. Leta s try the other side of the coin with the top of the line, a 64 5s iPhone GB, and they decide to go all-out with the $ 12 insurance / month pr? Cost of iPhone 5S: $ 920 Cost Up-Front: $ 440 FlexTab Balance: $ 480 ($ 240 / year) Proper and Protection of Devices Costs: $ 360 / year with advance against US $ 144 / year In a two-year contract remaining payment flextab: $ 0 with advance against $ 240 in two years cost of updating contract devices (assuming even though in contract Iphone 5s): $ 190 with advance $Ar against $ 455 with two years of savings contract with the next: $ 289, but you lose your iPhone 5s after a year. Considering a 64 for iPhone GB 5s currently sells for $ 790 on mother's mother, and iPhone 5 is going to $ 340, I would feel good about being able to get $ 289 for the 5s after a year and sucking the termination rates in two standard year contract. Basically, the cheapest of the phones you are dealing with, worse this agreement is. Even with top-of-the-line devices, you will rarely be taking advantage of the $ 250 of said device that you will have been earning all your mothers to the next payments. Another big problem here is that once you are ready to upgrade, you are signing up for another two-year term. Then, when you start with the next, you have a year to go. You finish this, and to take advantage of the money you've put in, you need to dedicate yourself to another two. Of course, you can optionally sign up Advance again, but you will always have at least two years of service to go in the end. This is a very insidious way of bringing back three years contracts after imposed by the government bearers descend to two. So, is Rogers next worth it? Rogers next is worth if you align with all these criteria: you can not be bothered to save money to your next phone and cost upgrade, but you can pass another other on top of your existing monthly plan of $ 80 +. You need the extra E proteÀSÀ provided by anyway device safe. We are receiving this for half-off with Rogers then equivalent to save $ 60 / year. You do want E bother to sell your old device. You really want to have a new phone every year. You estÁ confortÁvel pledging to be with Rogers in a year for two years. Rogers then becomes a bad negÁcio if you can get your Finance to buy the device immediately, can handle waiting for a second year to a new phone, you can live without proteÀSÀ E the device, or you Á © able to sell your second device mA E o.
