"Jeopardy!" contestant and guest host Ken Jennings may be the greatest of all time. But does he have the greatest payday of all time to match? Jennings has amassed a fortune appearing on the game show, dispelling any notion that knowledge doesn't pay. In fact, Jennings is tied as having the highest net worth of any former champion. Jennings has a net worth of around $4 million, an amount many would dream of. Jennings first started amassing his wealth when he appeared on "Jeopardy!" back in 2004. The young contestant took the game show by storm and captivated audiences. It seemed that no one and nothing could stop Jennings from winning. His reign finally came to an end after 74 games as the consecutive "Jeopardy!" champ. For that run, Jennings took home $2.52 million. "It's been a great time. It's the kind of thing that only comes once in a lifetime," Jennings said after his run. "And I just try to enjoy every minute of it. I really have had a happy life. And I hope nothing changes. I just want to stay the same person that I am despite it all." Ken Jennings Ties with Contestant Brad RutterSince then, Jennings has made multiple appearances on other game shows, adding to his net worth. Jennings has become a bit of a game show and trivia celebrity. Jennings appeared on shows like "Are You Smarter Than a Fifth Grader?," "Grand Slam," and "The Chase." The game show contestant turned host amassed hundreds of thousands of dollars for these guest stints. Additionally, Jennings took home more than $1 million when he competed in "The Greatest of All Time" tournament in 2020. Jennings competed against other "Jeopardy!" greats James Holzhauer and Brad Rutter. Holzhauer gained fame in 2019 when he went on a 32 game run. His net worth is around $2 million as a result. But Rutter actually ties Jennings for the same amount of money. The contestant also has $4 million in the bank. While Rutter never came close to Jennings' number of wins, he actually holds the record for most money won. Rutter took home the victory for high-stakes competitions like The Tournament of Champions, The Ultimate Tournament of Champions, and the Master Tournament of Champions among others. Those special "Jeopardy!" shows had big paydays attached. But you'll be unlikely to hear any of the three "Jeopardy!" contestants complain. They turned their time on the show into major financial gain. A Game of Trivia, Smarts, and Strategy: The 65-Episode Series Will See if Contestants Can Beat The Best Trivia Minds, Including 'Jeopardy!' G.O.A.T. Ken JenningsMASTER MINDS, hosted by Emmy®-nominated Game Show Host Brooke Burns ("Baywatch"; "The Chase") will debut on April 6 at 4:00 p.m. ET and air weekdays. In MASTER MINDS, three contestants square off against three trivia Master Minds in multiple rounds of intense trivia competition. The lowest scoring player on each side is eliminated until the top competitor and top Master Mind are left standing and now must face off, head-to-head, in the Ultimate Trivia Challenge. If the contestant can get more questions correct than the Master Mind, they will win $10,000 and come back to challenge the Masters again. If they win three games in a row, they join the ranks of the Master Minds and will appear in future episodes. Actress and Emmy®-nominated television host Brooke Burns began her career with breakout roles in "Ally McBeal," "Baywatch," and "Melrose Place." In 2002, she made her game show hosting debut on NBC's "Dog Eat Dog," and went on to host ABC's "You Deserve It" with Chris Harrison. From 2013-2015 Burns served as host of Game Show Network's Emmy®-nominated and wildly popular UK-adapted trivia show, "The Chase," where she was also nominated for an Emmy® as outstanding game show host. Burns is also known for her starring roles on the Hallmark and Lifetime Channels, currently for the original movie franchise "Gourmet Detective," and earlier films "A Sister's Revenge," "The Most Wonderful Time of the Year," and "Christmas Connection."The Master Minds the contestants will be facing are: KEN JENNINGS, The Trivia Legend (Seattle, WA) - The Jeopardy! and trivia G.O.A.T.
