Stock Image No need to be a genius to help children achieve their intellectual potential one just a loving, father involved. Here are some fun and faithful ways to encourage your small smarty-pants. Vacuum with your babythe cā © babythe is attached to seek safety, and if the congratulation does not feel safe, you can not learn, according to Tracy Cutchlow, Editor of the Book Brain Rules for the baby . This is why it is so important to establish contact feeling security skin the skin of your baby helps build this safety sensation as well as face time, massage for babies, talk to your baby, and wearing your baby.Creating that safety can feel hard when you are a new deprivation of sleep sleep, social isolation, and new potentially unequal functions. But a strong relationship with your partner is one of the best ways to make your baby feel Secure.Cutchlow suggests write down tasks, come to an agreement with your partner on how to divide them, and to be Solidario in "moments of great emotional cargo." If you have a fight in front of your baby, she says, do not worry, this happens just make sure you restore the safety sensation, making yourself in front of your baby, too m. The babies do not understand the words, but they are affected by the emotions between you and your partner. Experts recommend talking to your baby too much. "The rebachen is a standard search engine," says Jill Stamm, an initial development specialist of the Bright Cane and the Brilliant Book from the beginning. "The more you hear the patterns of language, the easier learning becomes." Tracy Cutchlow, Brain Rules for Baby Editor, suggests narrating her day. "Thoughts are running in our head all day," says Cutchlow. "And while it would not normally share every thought out loud, vocalizing this steady flow of information really stimulates your baby's intelligence." At 3 years old, children spoken more frequently have a Qi who is 1.5 times greater than that of children Weren 't. At the moment they are at primary school, they have much stronger reading, spelling and writing skills, cutchlow says.how you plant the seed for such a strong language development? There are three keys: the number of words, variety and complexity of words, and the way to say them.by narrating your day, you will naturally use all kinds of words. And using descriptors such as "red car" and "café extremely strong", you will spice up the vocabulary that you are exposing your baby to.the tone from your voice is also important. You know that the baby-friendly, singing-songy voice of a taller tone, exaggerated vowels (think: 'helloooooo, haaaaa-byyyy!') Do you instinctively use? You're on the right track! Researchers call "parentheses", and is a great way to help the brain of a baby us to learn the tongue, because every sounds of more distinct vowels. Tom helps children separate sounds into categories and high frequency is easier for them imitate.Stamm warns that parents tend to speak less, if your baby did not start babbling still babbling. But do not let your a little silence stop you a loquacious being, because of your baby. "We know for a fact that makes the learning of bique easier." Let the babbling start! Invest in timefeel face how to get googly eyes for your baby for hours on end? Going for it es ion is increasing Development.Research Cane of your baby that babies begin to recognize facial expressions of their parents for 3 or 4 months of age, and they do not stop for aon. For about 5 months, babies can understand emotions on a face of an unknown person and for 7 to 9 months of age can read dogs and monkeys faces, TOO.EMOTION is one of the first babies to communicate with us , says Ross Flom, associate professor of psychology and neuroscience at Brigham Young University, in Utah. And being able to read facial expressions is the angular stone of strong non-verbal communication skills, defining your baby for better teamwork, fewer fights and stronger long-term relationships as an adult. While you really can not ever have a lot of time, watch your baby baby Signs of being more stimulated, says Tracy Cutchlow, book editor Brain Rules for the baby. "The rebroit needs pauses," she says. Look at the signs, like your baby looking away. "If they're turning off, do not try to force it." Instead, give your baby a few minutes to sue what she learned. Limit TimeKids "bucket" spend too long in "buckets," says Bright Author Start Jill Stamm. And by buckets, she means children's carts, car seats, and so on anything that one that restricts babies movement.many from your baby spend hours in your car seats every day, even when it's not In the car. Obviously, the security comes first: Stamm is talking about how to limit time in car seats and other buckets out of car.Why? Because babies need to be able to respond freely to the stimulants around them. To do this, they need to be able to move freely, and look forward, to the side, and behind them. They need to follow the signs of their eyes and ears, and follow the signs that they are alerted to.This is the first phase of the development of your child's attention system, which "very early forms". Says Stamm. It defines the stage for a stronger capacity later to focus and focus on. Pointing your FingerResearch programs that children learn the faster tongue if you aim for an object while saying that Word.at first, the baby will look at you when you point. As it gets a bit older, he can look at his pointing finger, too. For about 9 months, most babies start following their finger pointing and observe what you are pointing to, says BYU Psychology Teacher Ross Flom.at About 9 or 10 months, the baby's babies The beginning to bring objects to show you. Having this shared interaction is called "Joint Attention". This means that your child is developing the ability to relate to you about something (and someone) off the two you.what parents can do to build this skill? They continue to point things out and talk about them. Your baby may not understand the words you are saying, but your communication with it will gradually become more complex.You can go to the zoologic garden, for example, where you can both give your Attention for an animal as a polar bear. "Point for him, talk about it, describe it," Flom says, to promote, and cognitive social development of language. The purpose of this book is to help you, as parents, to provide educational experiences for your child from birth to the age of age. Chapters will describe a series of step-by-step exercises, games and learning activities aimed at goals are specific in accordance with the expectations of normal development. Want to guarantee that your baby is safe and healthy in the corner? Do not look more than your smartphone. Thanks to a series of new applications, your faithful mobile phone can easily fold like a baby monitor. "We used cell phones for Skype, teleconference, and enjoying audio and video with friends and family," says Scott Steinberg, state-of-the-art technology and author of the Guide to Fathers Modern Series. "It is intuitive that you would also be able to use these devices to keep an eye on what you most love - Your child!" A phone monitor has a great advantage: it allows you to travel parents check-in in your small any place love nugget, at any time. And the installation is something easy, even for new hands and private parents sleep. Still, some parents can be cautious in streaming than is Especially the light of the recent news on sorted baby monitors. Make sure that though the thought is scary, the chances that this happens to you is relatively low. "Realistically, while you are using a secure solution and a properly protected network and account, you are probably safe," says Steinberg. Still, a little extra precaution can not hurt. "Make sure your wi-fi network is protected by password, and always use the Possword Possible, "he adds. For example, do not use obvious choices, such as 'password', your birthday, or '123456.' In addition, resist the temptation to upload the monitor feed to the web so you can share it with all yours. Friends and family check out our sleep-through-the- Dust night out of an intelligent old phone that you have by aa - you will need two phones to pull this off (and if you do not have an old man. Phone, chances are soon you will consider as frequently New versions leave!) The good news is that you will not have to pay to use the old phone since you only need access to the internet and it should work on the same wi-fi network you use with your current phone . Download the application of your choice for both phones. Configure one in the corner and point the camera to the corner. "The important thing is to put the phone away enough to see your baby, but not Far far away not being able to say what is happening," advises Steinberg. Do not forget to check if it is it is connected to your network and PL wi-fi ugged to an outlet. This phone will be your baby monitor; The other will be the "father's stage." Before hitting the switch, be sure to allow advanced application security features to keep the video flows from your private baby, accessible only by you.
