How to make an effective fruit selector in 15-20 minutes without cost Requirements: -1. Long straightish stick2. It means removing the excess branches from the stick (hands, secateurs, saw...) 3. Hammer, two nails and optional washers.4. Lata (greatest variety, whenever possible!), Optional material to fill in the can. Fin a long streetish and trim any bitside can use the hands to break them, secateurs, or a saw to cut them. With something like the picture (you'll probably want to remove the unused branch that's still on this stick) 1. Cut a large V shape at the edge of the can, O © Once the fruit stalk enters and it will be cut off/ twisted off. Check how the sharp V is ©, just for your own conscience; I used the Secateurs, and it wasn't sharpened for touch. Nail the can to the smallest end of the stick, using at least two nails in the direction of the length of the stick, with washers holding the can for the stick (it will still work well without washers). You will be able to nail your nails through © is of the V.4 gap. You may want to fill your can with material for mercy, but the fruit doesn't get far in all this, so that's not it. © It will if you're planning to eat them soon. Go to the wild world with a basket and its fruit selector, and collect some fruits. You should be able to choose anything from small fruits to large. Just take the fruit stalk on the violent V of the tin and twist or push forward, and the fruit stalk will be broken and the fruit will fall into the can. The Social Security Administration (SSA) compiles a list of the most popular baby names in the last hundred years. This is perhaps the most complete picture of the most common names in the United States.
