How to spin the lucky wheel on xbox

Like every new season, Apex Legends Season 10: Emergence brought players another 110 level Battle Pass for players to grind through. It may seem daunting at first. However, there is a variety of ways players can rank up. Apart from the new Legend, Seer, and the World's Edge, Apex Legends fans were also treated to a new Battle Pass. Like every season, the Battle Pass includes various cosmetic items for players, from banner frames to new skins. The Apex Legends Emergence Battle Pass is different from any of the previous seasons, but the best ways to rank up fast remain the same, so let's get into it. The Battle Pass has always been an integral part of every new season for Apex Legends, keeping players occupied with weekly challenges to reach the Legendary weapon skin at level 100, hopefully. There are also free rewards for those who can't and don't want to purchase that Battle Pass. Read more: What is KP in Apex Legends? How to get and max limit Players are then encouraged to go even further, as gaining more Battle Pass stars even after reaching level 100 will gain you another version of the final tier legendary weapon skin. With this in mind, let's take a look at how you can rank up fast in the Apex Legends Season 9: Legacy Battle Pass. How to get the Apex Legends Emergence Battle Pass The Apex Legends Season 10: Emergence Battle Pass can be purchased from the lobby menu for 950 Apex Coins or 2,000 for the Battle Pass Bundle for those who want a 25 tier head start. You can either purchase the Battle Pass with real money, or you may find you have enough from completing or progressing through a previous season's Battle Pass, as Apex Coins are among the rewards. How to rank up Apex Legends Season 10 Battle Pass fast Complete Apex Legends Emergence Battle Pass Challenges The best way you can progress through the Battle Pass is through completing daily and weekly challenges. Players will now receive 11 weekly and 5 daily challenges to complete. The amount of challenges has increased this season due to the introduction of Arenas, so make sure to play both the battle royale and new 3v3 mode to rank up as fast as possible. Read more: How to get the Apex Legends Season 10 Emergence Pack The weekly and daily challenges are designed to help you through the Battle Pass by giving players Battle Pass specific XP known as STARS, which contribute towards a full Battle Pass level. The challenges will vary from play a certain amount of games to getting kills with certain Legends or weapons. Completing all, if not most of these challenges as they come out, will allow you to complete the battle pass even before the last week of challenges. Playing matches in Apex Legends Season 10: Emergence Although this one may seem obvious, consistently playing the game will also level up your Battle Pass, not just your account level. If you're serious about reaching the end of the Battle Pass, you will need to play consistently throughout the season, whether it's Arenas or the classic battle royale. Read more: Best controller settings for Apex Legends Season 10: Emergence Playing matches will also complete daily and weekly challenges passively even if you're not trying to complete them, which is nice if you are someone who prefers to play rather than focus on challenges. You can gain the most XP in a match by killing the Champions, placing high in the lobby, and preferably winning many games, as this is how you will receive the most XP. On the other hand, doing things like leaving matches before the full squad has died will hinder your XP and way to reaching Battle Pass tier 110. Purchasing Battle Pass tiers For those who can't wait for new challenges to be released and don't want to grind the game out enough to passively complete the Battle Pass, you can also purchase tiers for 150 Apex Coins each. However, it will cost you a lot of money to buy all the way up to tier 100, where you will then have to play to get to 110. These are some of the best ways to rank up fast in Apex Legends Season 10: Emergence.
